DIRECTOR COORDINATING COUNCILS SPEAKS HERE

Dr. John W. Wilhoit was chairman of the Wednesday Kiwanis luncheon program with his speaker, John R. Lyons, director of Coordinating Councils of San Diego. These councils have recently been organized for the prevention of juvenile delinquency and has the cooperation of all school and affiliated groups as well as organizations who are working for better social environment.

The various groups conduct surveys, make studies and hold conferences in order to discover and assist children needing attention by private or public agencies.

Plans for character building or leisure time programs for individual children or groups are made by a group representing character-building organizations. The general purpose is to make the community a better place in which to live with fewer problems given by the unruly child.

Mr. Lyons' talk was highly instructive and represented needs of San Diego after a survey in which five thousand homes were consulted.

President Felt reported on a district meeting at Brawley, held last week, which he and Mrs. Felt attended.

Former mayor of San Diego, Harry C. Clark, was a guest of James H. McKinney and Capt. F. R. Sessions was a guest of Milton Lancaster.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Hilliard entertained with a birthday dinner Feb. 23 at their home 1637 Sunset Cliffs Blvd., celebrating their combined birthdays which fell on the same date. The George Washington motif was carried out through the gay affair. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Levy, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Eising, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Shachtelbeck, Mr. and Mrs. David Lewis, Carl Nelson, F. J. Lewis, N. J. Thomas, Mrs. Mabel Smith, Miss June Rose Hilliard and the grand children, Claire and Jack.

George M. Jacobson, minister of the Lutheran Mission church at Ocean Beach the past year, left yesterday for his former home at Stockton, California. Mr. Jacobson, we think, has been outstanding in his work of establishing a permanent church here for the Lutheran people and has many friends, made by his sincerity, who will be sorry to see him leave and welcome him back whenever he sees fit to visit this section.

H. C. Litterick returned last week from Decatur, Ill., where he was called by the illness and death of his father. His mother came home with him and will likely make her home now at Ocean Beach. On the trip Litterick contracted a severe cold, in the below zero weather of Illinois, and was confined to his bed for a few days but we are pleased to report he is now back at his work.

"We Are Changing--" Forum Topic Tuesday

"We Are Changing: But How?" will be discussed by John R. Lyons at an adult forum which meets at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday night, March 3, in the auditorium of the Ocean Beach elementary school, 4741 Santa Monica avenue.

Mr. Lyons is interested in attempting to show the relationship of modern social trends and everyday life. He brings to the discussion a varied and colorful background of experience as former member of the National Board of Motion Picture Censorship, was decorated by the Chinese government for services in connection with Chinese famine and flood relief; educational adviser in CCC camps, and now is connected with the county probation department as director of Coordinating Councils for the prevention of juvenile delinquency.

This is the second of a series of discussions featured by the Ocean Beach social-civic forum, and Mr. Lyons is presented by Paul Klein and Dr. Charles C. Falk, directors of the forum. These forums are free to the public.

President Roosevelt made this remark recently: "We need to have meeting places for the discussion of public questions in cities, hamlets, and on the farms throughout the length and breadth of the land."

Two New Cottages W. Pt. Loma Blvd.

Rochelle Boehn this week let a contract to the Diamond Construction Co. for the construction of two frame cottages to cost $1,000 each and a garage at $300, to be erected at 4922-24 West Point Loma Blvd. These cottages will have splendid views overlooking Mission Bay with mountains in the far background.

ANOTHER $5,000 HOME FOR NIAGARA AVENUE

Earl Hormuth, 4580 Niagara avenue, this week let a contract to J. L. Billups for a $5,000 stucco residence and garage at the first written address.

WANCA HUTA GROUP NO 1

A regular meeting was held by the Wanca Huta group No. 1 on Friday, Feb. 22, at the home of our leader Mrs. McCausland.

Those present were: Misses Pauline Gates, Jenette Lohman, Katharine Coul, Charlot Peltcher Florence McCausland, Shirley Wickern, Jerry Gates, Peggy Gobe, Grace Spencer, Jennie Lee, Jessie Mayback, Dorothy Banfield, Theda White, Josephine Lohman and Mrs. McCausland.

After the meeting we held a Studio party, by which honors were obtained, after which refreshments were served.

The evening as a whole was a very pleasant one, thanks to our leader. Our next meeting will be held at 7:30 p. m. Friday, Feb. 28.

Scribe—Josephine Lohman.

Local People Requested Attend Council Tuesday

A resolution has been presented the City Council by local groups asking that Collier park at Ocean Beach be placed on the ballot at the May election, the vote to be for the purpose of transferring the major portion of this unimproved park, to the ownership of the school board so that a start can be made upon very much needed additional school facilities.

This hearing will be held next Tuesday at the Council chambers shortly after opening at 10 a. m. and every person who can is asked to be present at the council meeting to show our interest in the project.

Additional high school room must be had, either for a junior or senior high, and Collier park presents the easiest way for the school board to acquire additional ground with little or no cost. As this park has never received any improvement by the city park commission it stands to reason they would willingly part with the responsibility of its improvement and upkeep.

Locally Grown Fruits Take Prizes at Expo

The soil and climate of Ocean Beach if given the assistance of a good gardener will produce as fine tropical fruits as can be grown any place according to the experience of L. O. Van Hook, corner Ebers and Santa Cruz avenue.

During the Exposition last year we noticed the entries of Mr. and Mrs. Van Hook in the horticultural exhibits but until last week did not learn that they won many outstanding awards in competition with growers from various parts of this county.

The awards were given by the 22nd District Agricultural association and the Van Hooks received certificates for the best guavas, tangelos, seedling and white sapotas, tree tomatoes and large sweet lemons. The tree tomato is quite a rarity but the other fruits have gained much prominence during the past few years and are taking their place on the fruit list with the more common varieties such as oranges and apples.

TALKING SHOP

It's not often that your newspaper "talks shop" in these columns. The Fourth Estate has a tradition about keeping its own joys and sorrows to itself while striving faithfully to report the news.

Not that your humble printed servant doesn't have its triumphs and tragedies—ask any ink stained veteran who has ever spilled (pied) a galley of type, or has struggled to find lead into a page form that is not rubber, but cold, unyielding metal.

But only seldom does your newspaper have something special to report about itself, something that is good news to you as well. And the fact that January retail display advertising in California was nearly ten per cent better than a year ago actually is good news to you.

One reason your food bill isn't higher today, for example, is that advertising in local newspapers has helped up-to-date stores achieve large sales volume and more direct mass marketing that permits lower prices and still gives the farmer his share. And if California is wise enough to defeat efforts to tax these methods out of existence by putting a punishing levy on multiple food stores, the money-saving methods will naturally become more effective as advertising increases further.

At any rate, if you agree it is good news to you, too, that merchants are ever more clearly recognizing the value of newspaper advertising, it will have justified this moment of "king's ex" on the Fourth Estate's old tradition about talking shop.

May Change Time Street Car Service

In line with the move to secure better bus transportation to the Point Loma high school, we are told there is a plan suggested by the Street Railway company that will allow the buses to operate at double their present efficiency.

The change contemplated is that Ocean Beach cars leave here on the hour and half-hour with no change in the car from Mission Beach. This would allow students from this section to take one bus and those coming on the No. 16 car to take another bus. This change would also allow a 15-minute schedule to San Diego from the Ocean Beach junction which additional services would be appreciated by a number of people.

No definite word has been sent out as yet regarding this change but if it is the only betterment the Street Railway can offer we should like to see it tried out.

January 1936 Business Beats January 1935

Far western business during January, 1936, based on the Bank of America index, stood at 74.4, which is 14.6 per cent greater than the index level for January, 1935. The gain over January, 1933, was 25.5 per cent.

That there is a definite and marked improvement in general business conditions throughout the far west is indicated by the following high lights from this business review, which was off the press today:

The total value of building permits issued by 50 cities in the eight far western states during January, 1936, was 62.8 per cent greater than the same month last year, and 170 per cent greater than in January, 1934.

January sales by retail establishments exceeded a year ago by 7.7 per cent.

Carolings during January, 1936, showed a gain of 21 per cent over January of last year, and 64 per cent over the same month of 1933.

Bank debits in the Twelfth Federal Reserve district which, according to the business review, are an index of business activity, showed an increase of 26.3 per cent over January, 1935. The gain in California was 28 per cent.

The level of prices received by California for 24 major agricultural products January, 1936, was 99 per cent of the July 1910-15 average. This is a gain of 35.6 per cent over January, 1933.

Wing of Aurora, Ill.; Mrs. C. E. McAtee of Oakridge, Oregon; Frank R. Clark, Morrisville, N. Y.; C. Melissa Clark, Sierra Madre, Calif.; Mrs. A. G. Burke, Jr., Chicago. Funeral services were held Tuesday, February 25.

Point Loma Basketeers Metropolitan Champs

Playing championship ball thruout a bitterly fought contest, the Point Loma High school basketball team overcame the Escondido High school quintet, 24-16, last Friday night at the Grape City gym. This victory, the culmination of an undefeated 7-game season, gave to Point Loma its first Metropolitan League championship.

Escondido started with the first toss-up and tallied on a nicely-executed play, but the Pointers came back undaunted and soon broke into the lead, which they held by a margin of from 4 to 8 points for the entire game. Lutes and Brosseau lead the Pointers in their fierce attack, tallying 7 points each.

The Pointer Bs, sorely disrupted by illness, fought a game but losing battle, dropping the decision to the Grapepickers by a 28-18 score. LeBarron paced the losers with a score of 5 points.

TODAY'S GAME

Today at 3:30 p. m., Point Loma High's basketeers engage in their first battle of the S. G. I. F., (Southern California Interscholastic Federation), playoffs, meeting San Diego High school in the Hilltoppers' gym. The playoffs will decide the champion basketball team of the Southern California high schools; and, in the first round, Point Loma draws a formidable foe in the Hilltoppers. San Diego High won the championship of the Bay league and are a tough foe for anyone to tackle; but because of their fine showing in the Metro loop, the Pointers are conceded a fair chance to win.

PROMPT SUBMISSION OF SRA FORMS REQUESTED

Proprietors of groceries and markets, physicians and dentists who have supplied commodities or services to the clients of the State Relief Administration in San Diego County are requested to cooperate with the local SRA by prompt submission of the forms to substantiate such claims according to an announcement issued today by Wm. J. Tway, acting director SRA.

"It appears," said Tway, "that there will be a change in the administration of relief locally in the near future and it is our intention to have our accounting in acceptable condition when and if the SRA activity terminates. Grocers and market owners should submit form 166 for food and household necessities. Physicians and dentists should submit forms 189 and 190. Druggists will also clear promptly on prescription charges. Rooming houses and restaurants in the city of San Diego who have furnished temporary room and board on the order of the SRA should submit at once the form 167."

It was indicated that all such claims would be promptly audited and vouchered to the state office for payment.

JANUARY BEVERAGE TAX IS $109,811.41

Sacramento, January 24—Taxes assessed on beer and wine in California totaled $106,547 during January, Ray Edgar, member of the State Board of Equalization, announced today.

"This amount was slightly larger than the corresponding month in 1935, when the beer and wine tax yielded $106,458," Edgar said.

News Reader Believes It Time For Cleanup

One is constantly hearing comments regarding the unsightly vacant lots and parkings due to dead weeds but nothing is done about it. The writer is tendering a suggestion that a day be set aside—preferably Saturday when the children will be at home to help—to be celebrated in Ocean Beach as Clean-Up Day.

As so many owners of vacant property live outside the city, best results would be obtained if the residents of each block would work on their own block, clearing the parkings at least.

It is thought best not to burn large surfaces over, thereby killing wild flowers which will soon be in blossom, also killing seeds and top soil. It is surprising that the city often takes this method of cleaning property, thereby doing more harm than good. There is also the question of legality.

The soil is very good at Ocean Beach and there are many lovely wild shrubs and flowers which are decorative if the unsightly weeds and dead growth are removed. If the residents, however, will give attention only to the parkings and space adjoining the sidewalks, the vacant lots may well be left alone.

After the parkings are cleared, it would take very little labor to plant seeds or cuttings of hardy plants which will blossom and flourish with no additional care. Mesembryanthemums in all the many varieties are good, geraniums, gallardias, nasturtiums and cactus would do well.

Surely the city street department would cooperate by having trucks pick up trash if piled in the streets for that one day. Then too, why not ask the city to send the tree trimmers to clear up overhanging branches without cost as they do in the city?

Ocean Beach may become a very beautiful suburb with the expenditure of a little effort.

What do you think of such a plan?

News Review of Current Events the World Over

Norris Urges Congress to Curb Supreme Court—Oratory on Lincoln Day—Death of Charles Curtis—Long Newspaper Tax Invalid.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD
© Western Newspaper Union.

SPEAKING in advocacy of the administration's substitute farm bill, Senator Norris, the independent Republican from Nebraska, scathingly attacked the Supreme court's AAA decision and urged congress to use its right to curb the court's power. He argued that the 8 to 3 decision itself was unconstitutional by the court's own reasoning and shouted "It cannot stand."

Senator Norris

"The regulation of agricultural production," he said, is unconstitutional because not mentioned in the Constitution, Norris asserted. "Nowhere in that great document is there a syllable, a word, or a sentence giving to any court the right to declare an act of congress unconstitutional. Hence, when the court indulges in that pastime it is itself violating the Constitution according to its own words."

Norris quoted from the majority opinion of the Supreme court holding that the regulation and control of agricultural production was a local affair reserved to the states and beyond the power of congress. Under that decision, he declared, not only the pending bill but "a large portion of the laws which congress has passed during the last hundred years are absolutely unconstitutional."

Of the later decision ordering return of processing taxes to the processors, the senator said Secretary Wallace perhaps was too severe in calling it the greatest legalized steal in history, and added: "But it is a gift, the greatest gift since God made salvation free."

Norris urged that congress pass a law requiring unanimous decisions by the Supreme court to overrule the acts of the legislative branch of the government.

LINCOLN day was the occasion for a flood of oratory, largely by Republican opponents of the New Deal. Herbert Hoover spoke at Portland, Ore., on the "State of the Union," which he said was a state of confusion in thought, government, economic life and the ideals of liberty. "The New Deal," said the former President, "has been a veritable fountain of fear. The day after the New Deal began life at the election of 1932 began the great fear which created the bank panic of March 4. The stock boom today is not from confidence in the future; it is partly from fear of inflation."

In Greensboro, N. C., Senator Dickinson of Iowa warmly defended the Supreme court as "the only remaining guardian of the liberty of the people," and inveighed against what he said was the New Deal's "planned economy" and its "attempted bribery of the states" through the invalidated AAA and its proposed substitute, the soil conservation measure.

Senator Vandenberg of Michigan was a speaker in New York city, and like his fellow Republicans he fiercely assailed the administration, terming it the "third party now in power."

Among the few leading Democrats heard was Secretary Wallace, who, in Indianapolis, defended the administration. Referring to the Constitution, he declared that "most of us" thought the agriculture adjustment act was valid, and "some of us, including three justices of the Supreme court, think so still."

CHARLES CURTIS, former Vice President of the United States and before that representative and senator from Kansas, died suddenly of heart disease at the Washington home of his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Gann. He was seventy-six years old, and was the first man of Indian blood ever to reside over the senate. He was one-quarter Kaw Indian, his grandmother having been Princess Julie of that tribe who married a French voyageur. In his boyhood Curtis was a jockey, and later a reporter. Having studied law, he became a prosecutor at the age of twenty-four in Shawnee county, Kansas, and was elected to congress in 1892. He was made senator in 1907, was defeated in 1912, and two years later was again elected senator. He was elected Vice President on the ticket headed by Herbert Hoover, and was renominated for that position in 1932.

Mr. Curtis was greatly liked by his associates in Washington and his death caused genuine grief. President Roosevelt said:

"I am deeply distressed to learn of the sudden passing of my old friend, Charles Curtis. Whether they knew him as a senator, as the Vice President of the United States, or as the man he was in his own right, his legion of friends will remember him, always affectionately, and will mourn his passing."

Charles Curtis

Vice President Garner said: "I was always fond of him. I was associated with him in the house and senate. He was a fine man and a good friend."

Funeral services for Mr. Curtis and the interment were in Topeka, Kan.

ONCE again the Supreme court of the United States comes to the rescue of a free press. Unanimously the nine justices ruled that the Louisiana law imposing a punitive tax on the advertising of the principal newspapers of that state is unconstitutional. The law was passed by a legislature controlled by the late Senator Huey Long. The court said of it:

"It is bad because, in the light of its history and of its present setting, it is seen to be a deliberate and calculated device in the guise of a tax to limit the circulation of information to which the public is entitled in virtue of the constitutional guarantee."

"A free press stands as one of the great interpreters between the government and the people. To allow it to be fettered is to fetter ourselves."

"In view of the persistent search for new subjects of taxation, it is not without significance that, with the single exception of the Louisiana statute, so far as we can discover, no state during the 150 years of our national existence has undertaken to impose a tax like that now in question."

"The form in which the tax is imposed is in itself suspicious. It is not measured or limited by the volume of advertisement. It is measured alone by the extent of the circulation of the publication in which the advertisements are carried, with the plain purpose of penalizing the publishers and curtailing the circulation of a selected group of newspapers."

LETTERS have been sent by President Roosevelt to the heads of the Latin-American governments inviting them to participate in a Pan-American conference, probably in Washington, the purpose of which will be to organize the peace machinery of the western hemisphere. Our State department says the meeting will endeavor to provide means for adjusting international disputes by peaceful means. The conference may bring up the Monroe Doctrine for a new definition through multilateral endorsement.

PRESIDENT WILLIAM L. RANSOM of the American Bar association, with headquarters in Chicago, announced that Newton D. Baker, former secretary of war, has accepted the chairmanship of the association's special committee on co-operation between the press, radio and bar against publicity interfering with fair trial of judicial and quasi-judicial proceedings.

N. D. Baker The creation of this special committee to define standards to be recommended to lawyers, newspapers and radio broadcasters in the matter of publicity as to court trials, said the announcement, is an outcome of the incidents arising in the course of the Bruno Hauptmann trial and various proceedings before governmental boards and bodies, "and it is hoped that such standards can be made effective through rules of court or through legislation."

ACCORDING to the London Daily Herald, a secret decree providing for expulsion of all Jews from Germany as rapidly as possible has been prepared by Nazi leaders and laid before Chancellor Hitler for his signature. The paper said the decree provided for the confiscation of all property of expelled Jews.

This story may not be true, but there is no doubt that Hitler and his associates are determined to extirpate all the organizations and groups which they consider in opposition to the Nazi regime, and Hitler himself has declared the Jews are to blame for all the troubles of the reich in recent years. Scores of Catholic youth leaders have been arrested, charged with co-operation with illegal Communist groups, and it is predicted their organizations will be dissolved. The campaign is carried on with great secrecy. It was announced in Berlin that district governors henceforth would take orders from the Gestapo, the secret state police. This was interpreted as an indication of an immediate carrying out of promises by Nazi leaders for more ruthless, more determined action against enemies within the reich.

PRESIDENT LAZARO CARDENAS of Mexico went to Monterey to investigate a stoppage of business and industry in protest against labor troubles attributed to Communists. He issued this ultimatum: "Employers who are fatigued by Mexico's social and economic struggle can turn over their industries to the workers or the government—that would be patriotic. But stoppage of activities cannot be countenanced."

AMERICA'S delegates to the naval conference in London consented to an agreement that would bind this country for five years or more to refrain from building any more cruisers in excess of 8,000 tons in size. When the news reached Washington there was immediate and loud protest in congress against what was termed a "colossal blunder."

High ranking navy officials refused to comment officially upon the London agreement, but said privately that any program which does not include the co-operation of Japan and Germany would be a failure.

Any agreement will not affect the navy's present building program, these officials pointed out, and they refused to be alarmed about the prospect of future limitations.

TRIAL of the assassins of King Alexander of Yugoslavia at Marseilles came to an end at Aix-en-Provence, France, with verdicts of guilty for the six defendants. For three of the band of Croats, members of the secret Ustachi society, who were apprehended, mercy was recommended and they were given sentences of life imprisonment in French Guiana. The others, who never were caught, were sentenced to death. One of the latter is Dr. Ante Pavelich, reputed head of the Ustachi.

ELMER B. O'HARA, Democratic state chairman of Michigan and former clerk of Wayne county, which includes Detroit; State Senator A. J. Wilkowski and 16 others of lesser prominence were convicted in Detroit of having attempted to steal the 1934 election. Eight defendants in the recount case, which had been on trial for nearly 12 weeks, were acquitted. Two other defendants previously had pleaded guilty, thus bringing to 20 the number facing sentence for their part in the vote recount conspiracy.

For O'Hara, the verdict came as the culmination of a series of calamities in a brief political career. Last November a jury in Macomb county, adjacent to Wayne, found him guilty of bribery in a drainage transaction in connection with real estate deals he had made before 1932 when he entered politics and was elected Wayne county clerk. He awaits sentence under that conviction. After conviction he was removed from office.

In the recount case O'Hara was found guilty on three counts, permitting others to alter ballots, conspiring to permit others to alter ballots, and conspiring to permit others to conduct the recount in an unlawful manner and change the result of the November, 1934, election by putting Democrats in office instead of the Republicans elected.

LEADERS of congress nope for an early adjournment, by May 1 at the latest, and therefore they pushed the new farm bill forward, trying to get it through both houses without much delay. In their desire to get away from the Capital, they already had decided to let the proposed permanent neutrality legislation go by the board.

The farm bill as rewritten by the senate agriculture committee is based on the soil erosion prevention scheme. Some Democrats joined with many Republicans in opposing the measure, one of them being Senator Walsh of Massachusetts. In a statement issued to the press he declared it was a "dangerous" bill conferring "autocratic and blanket authority" on the secretary of agriculture. He said the measure was "neither valid in law nor valid in economics."

Chairman Doughton of the house ways and means committee said he expected definite word from the White House or treasury soon on the amount and kind of taxes that might be imposed to finance the new farm program.

Speaker Byrns said he could see no reason why the tax measure should not emerge from the committee by the end of February.

ACTION against John J. Raskob, former chairman of the Democratic national committee when Al Smith was the Presidential nominee, and who is now president of the American Liberty league, has been begun by the government for an alleged deficiency of $1,026,340 on his 1929 income taxes. The claim was filed in an amendment to the petition recently filed against Pierre S. du Pont two days before Al Smith had bitterly assailed the New Deal. In the petition, which Raskob described as "New Deal persecution," Mr. du Pont was alleged to have understated his 1929 income by $2,897,832 and an additional tax of $617,316 was asked. In the amended petition accusing Mr. Raskob, it was alleged that he and the industrialist engaged in "fictitious" sales of securities, one to the other, to a total of about $30,000,000 for the purpose of showing losses.

MRS. HUEY P. LONG, widow of the slain senator from Louisiana, took her seat in the senate to complete Huey's unfinished term, becoming the second woman member of the upper house. After eleven months she will be succeeded by Allen Allender, speaker of the Louisiana house of representatives, who was nominated for the regular term.

TO DEBATE HAWAIIAN STATEHOOD

Starting a nation-wide tour in southern California, these five students from the University of Hawaii will debate the question of Hawaiian statehood with teams representing universities and colleges in 40 of the 48 states. Arriving at Los Angeles on the Matson liner Malolo February 19, they will debate in the Los Angeles area before starting eastward. Left to right are Robert Taira, John Castevens, Clarence Chang, Frank Hustace and Robert North.

SOUTHLAND DAMAGED BY HEAVY GALES

High winds and heavy rains again visited southern California, causing considerable damage. When a roaring tornado struck Long Beach, Alhambra and Torrance, houses were unroofed, trees uprooted and oil derricks toppled over. Photo shows trees uprooted at Alhambra by force of the wind.

Jinx?

Just a few weeks ago Rochell Hudson, movie star had a tough break when she was injured in a snowslide while filming a scene in the Sierra. Now she's on the injured list again, suffering from a severe scalp laceration received in a screen fight with an actor.

Between sixty and one hundred Santa Barbara County families now on relief are being given opportunity to be placed on fertile farms where the government thinks such families will be self-supporting. A few families from Kern and Ventura Counties will also be included in the project, under sponsorship of the Rural Rehabilitation Bureau.

SMALLEST BABY POSES FOR SIZE

All Around the House

If your cactus does not bloom pinch leaves and branches, leaving only branches that grow upward. Water whenever soil is dry.

To dice or cut marshmallows easily dip a dry scissors into powdered sugar.

Add one-eighth teaspoon of cream of tartar to cinnamon and sugar used in apple sauce. It gives it a delicious flavor.

One teaspoon of chopped maraschino cherries and one tablespoon of orange juice added to boiled salad dressing makes a delicious dressing for fruit salads.

Rub equal parts of linseed oil and vinegar well shaken into leather covered chairs, occasionally. It keeps them in good condition.

Tie a cheese cloth or paper bag over the mouth of food chopper, when cutting bread, nuts, etc., through it. Every bit will then be saved.

If an apple tree is broken by winter storms, pare off the splinters with a sharp knife or chisel and treat the wound with creosote, then give it a coat of linseed oil and lead paint. Do not let the creosote touch the live bark.

Chocolate cake scorches easily on the bottom and sides because of the large percentage of fat it contains. It is therefore necessary to bake it in a moderate oven.

Steel Backbone of the Grand Coulee Dam

UNDER this framework of steel girders the concrete is being poured at the west end of the world's greatest dam, at Grand Coulee, Wash. As the dam rises the concrete will swallow up these trestles and they will forever remain as the steel backbone of the dam. They will be extended across the river as work progresses and the one in the foreground, now 275 feet high, will be raised 200 feet higher as the dam rises.

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

THE MYSTERY IS SOLVED

IT WAS very mysterious. Yes, sir, it was very mysterious. Mr. Quack thought so. Mrs. Quack thought so. There, out on the Big River in the midst of the Black Shadows was something which looked like the branch of a tree. But instead of moving down the river as the branch of a tree would if it were floating, this was coming straight across the river as if it were swimming. But how could the branch of a tree swim? That was too much for Mr. Quack. It was too much for Mrs. Quack.

So Mr. and Mrs. Quack Watched That Thing That Looked Like a Swimming Branch.

So they sat perfectly still along the brown stalks of the wild rice along the edge of the Big River and not for a second did they take their eyes from that strange thing moving toward them. They were ready to spring into the air and trust to their swift wings the instant they should detect danger. But they did not want to fly unless they had to. Besides, they were curious. They were very curious, indeed. They wanted to find out what that mysterious thing moving through the water toward them was.

So Mr. and Mrs. Quack watched that thing that looked like a swimming branch draw nearer and nearer, and the nearer it drew the more they were puzzled and the more curious they felt. If it had been the pond of Paddy the Beaver instead of the Big River, they would have thought it was Paddy swimming with a branch for his winter food pile. But Paddy the Beaver was way back, deep in the Green Forest in his own pond, and they knew it, for they had spent the day at that pond. So this thing became more and more of a mystery. The nearer it got the more nervous and anxious they became, and at the same time the greater became their curiosity.

At last Mr. Quack felt that not even to gratify his curiosity would it be safe to wait longer. He prepared to spring into the air, knowing that Mrs. Quack would follow him. It was just then that a funny little sound reached them. It was a half snort, half cough, as if some one had got some water up his nose. There was something familiar about it. Mr. Quack decided to wait a few minutes longer.

"I'll wait," thought Mr. Quack, "until that thing, whatever it is, comes out of those Black Shadows into the moonlight. Somehow I have a feeling that we are in no danger."

So Mr. and Mrs. Quack waited and watched. In a few minutes the thing that looked like the branch of a tree came out of the Black Shadows into the moonlight and then the mystery was solved. It was a mystery no longer. They saw that they had mistaken the antlers of Lightfoot the Deer for the branch of a tree. Lightfoot was swimming across the Big River on his way back to his home in the Green Forest. At once Mr. and Mrs. Quack swam out to meet him and tell him how glad they were that he was alive and safe.

DURING the cold weather we enjoy the hot foods and richer puddings and meat dishes. The following good things will be suggestive of many others that may be prepared:

Did you ever serve pork or lamb chops rolled in corn flakes or rice flakes instead of crumbs? They are most attractive. Sliced eggplant or cauliflower crumbed with them makes an unusual and attractive way of serving such vegetables.

Spiced Steam Pudding.

Cream one tablespoon of shortening, add one-fourth of a cup of sugar, one cup of molasses two and one-half cups of flour, sifted with a teaspoon of soda and one and one-half teaspoons of baking powder; add one cup of sour milk, one teaspoon each of salt and cinnamon and one-fourth of a teaspoon each of cloves, nutmeg and allspice. Add one cup of cut raisins sprinkled with some of the flour. Steam one and one-half hours. Serve with any preferred sauce.

French Fruit Salad.

Peel equal quantities of bananas, pears and apples, cut into dice. Mix with mayonnaise enriched with cream and seasoned with lemon juice instead of vinegar. Serve on lettuce and garnish with cubes of tart jelly.

Escalloped Cheese and Olives.

Brown one small onion, chopped, in one tablespoon of butter. Add one and one-half cups of tomato strained, one-half teaspoon each of salt, sugar and one-eighth teaspoon of paprika with three tablespoons of paprika; cook 15 minutes until the tapoca is clear, stirring frequently. Place a layer of the mixture in a greased baking dish, cover with one-half cup of cheese and 18 ripe or stuffed olives coarsely chopped; finish with a cover of buttered crumbs and bake 20 minutes.

SEAS OF WORDS

By DOUGLAE MALLOCH

SEAS of words—with only now
And then an island,
Seas of words—for men to plow
To fight one highland.
And if one thought should lift
Above that ocean,
Mankind prefers to drift
Upon emotion.

Seas of words—with only here
And there a prize one,
Seas of words—for men to steer
To find a wise one.
The orators declaim,
Some print their pages,
And say the same things, same
Through all the ages.

Seas of words—wave after wave
In which to wallow,
Seas of words—but few to save,
Or safe to follow.
Yet, if a truth we read,
We often miss one,
For very few will heed,
Heed even this one.

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well-Being to Unknown Preparations

THE person to ask whether the preparation you or your family are taking for the relief of headaches is SAFE to use regularly is your family doctor. Ask him particularly about Genuine BAYER ASPIRIN.

He will tell you that before the discovery of Bayer Aspirin most "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as bad for the stomach and, often, for the heart. Which is food for thought if you seek quick, safe relief.

Scientists rate Bayer Aspirin among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and the pains of rheumatism, neuritis and neuralgia. And the experience of millions of users has proved it safe for the average person to use regularly. In your own interest remember this.

You can get Genuine Bayer Aspirin at any drug store simply by asking for it by its full name, BAYER ASPIRIN. Make it a point to do this—and see that you get what you want.

ECONOMIC EVOLUTION

Certain sections of the country are still feeling the "pinch of poverty." It might be considered a severe indictment upon any government when people are allowed to go hungry, or suffer from the ill-effects of starving for food! It has already been asked what would happen after the $4,880,000,000 work relief fund expires June 30, 1936? But the President frankly says that he is ready to go back to Congress for more straight relief money if it is needed; "people cannot be allowed to starve," he says.

From 1915 to 1930 government costs increased almost twice as fast as population here in California. Now, it is revealed that the gross debt of the state has reached close to a billion and a half, or about $186 per capita. This means that government has been on a spending spree, alright. This condition also points out to the sorrow of the tax-payer that if relief is to be given there must be a halt in expenses elsewhere. Relief expenses have been an alarming burden upon the poor fellow who pays the taxes. The President speaks from a national standpoint, and not singularly by states. California has relief obligations that must be met. The care of our own people is worry enough without other increases placed upon the people; but California is waking up to its obligation. Just now there is checking-up going on from every utility standpoint. This state has millions of acres of good uncultivated land; and no steps seem to be taken as yet to improve the opportunity for opening up a benevolent campaign to put this land into use by the idle and the needy, who are able-bodied with an ambition to work, furnishing food and wear to the great army of unemployed.

This is one tangible way for improving conditions, which is not an impossible task; it is a prosperous possibility, summed up in these few words: Prosperity will come when there are manifestations of determined effort to greatly reduce the cost of government, federal, state and local.

The trouble with so many people today, they are going thru life too sober-faced—actually, barren of a smile. A sense of humor is imperative every day of our life; a word or a joke that will make laughter. Cicero said long ago, "Humor is not only pleasant, but even try to be funny, in business, or common conversation whatever the occupation. Teachers are advised not only to smile away a long face, but to instruct their pupils to cultivate the habit of carrying a cheerful countenance. A laugh is good medicine, and should be shared liberally. President Lincoln always carried a copy of Artemus Ward's joke book to relieve his heavy-hearted mind, and Benjamin Franklin was considered one of the greatest jesters and humorists of his day.

A glad heart is a real treasure,
Driving all dull care away;
Its true value who can measure,
Making December pleasant as May.

Among the latest political ambitions comes in the person of John Stevens McGrorty, who solemnly says that he will honestly become a candidate for President of the United States, if he is offered the nomination. California's idolized poet laureate is "getting into politics" without much effort, but who would have believed that, with the magnificent literary ability so admired by all, he would "mix with politics!" Indeed, a man of his stamp should be an honor to any political office he might seek. There is a crying need of leaders who can at least point out to the people the just course to follow, and who by example as well as precept, set a higher standard for both officeholder and those who elect them to their exalted positions. We need leaders who are modern "Josiahs", who will refuse to compromise with the forces of lawlessness, who cannot be corrupted by threats, who will "stand to the covenant" in the face of flattery and opposition.

Southern California occupies the distinction of undisputed leadership in the aircraft industry. It was said years ago that the next war would be fought from the air, and already it proves that it is no false prophecy, for evidences are daily pictured in the newspapers of Italy's air slaughter on her enemy. War defense is a potential measure in the civilized world; even among peaceful nations. Every great nation of the world has that fear of attack by some other nation; thus compelled to take costly precautions in the shape of armed defense. And all this while years of discussion and laborious, patient-trying, heart-breaking toil at disarmament conferences seem to fail achieving general reduction, each bitterly accusing some other of refusing to disarm! The airplane, with its deadly bomb is the latest device for quick action and formidable human slaughter.

There is a lot said about the "forgotten man," but no one seems to point him out for any good reason. Perhaps the tactics of the average citizen are well worthy of the name. He is the one most deserving and less appreciated! It is not going too far to say that the forgotten man who earns a moderate salary, owns or perhaps is still paying for his home, has a small car and two or three children. He is the man who pays his taxes uncomplainingly, works cheerfully at his job, is thankful he is an American, and trusts that things will come out all right eventually. He is the man who stands by hopefully while various groups fight for this or that; and which ever side wins, it is usually he who foots most of the bills. Such a citizen is master of efficiency. In all his contributions to human welfare, he stands for high ideals and all the best things in life.

The little land of Finland is Uncle Sam's most favorite debtor. It is the only nation that has never failed to meet an installment when due. The aggregate due our nation in war debts is about a cold billion dollars! Thus Uncle Sam is "holding the sack" with all the grace and calmness possible more than any other power today; but, the question arises, what can be done about it? Good intentions are of no value unless carried out.

Point Loma High School News.

The Basketball championship must have been won partly because the team felt the tremendous enthusiasm of the students at an assembly Friday morning.

Mack Graham, student body president, opened the meeting. Fifteen yells for the team on the stage was followed by the introduction by Coach Beerkle of "Buzz" Brosseau who talked on "Reactions of the Team".

Entertainment numbers interspersed pep talks by Robert D. Williams, vice principal, Coach Purdy, Dave B. Austin and Coach Beerkle.

Alison Gronberg at the piano played "Alone", "I'm in the Mood for Love" and an encore "Blue Moon". Ross Merrill was heard in two effective guitar solos, "Sweet Sue" and "St. Louis Blues". Lyonne Stratton, accompanied at the piano by Bob Winters, danced "Rhythm Tap".

School songs "Come Join Our Band" and "March, March" were led by Yell Leaders Kinnings, Pielop, and Paskowitz.

The Point Loma school song closed the assembly.

Cement has poured for two of the four units of shop class rooms being built at Point Loma. The print and wood shops are the first two. Floor joists and flooring sheaths are being laid this week.

Altho the rains caused several days lay-off on the work, the job is still ahead of schedule.

Recent improvements on the grounds withstood, the tests of the severe rains. Very little erosion took place. This amply justifies the money spent and labor hired.

An all school show is scheduled for March 12 and 13. Much interest is developing over the acts contributed by the different departments. Students individually or in groups are trying out for a place in the show. While it isn't a typical Hi-Jinks program it will be along similar lines.

W. E. Shepherd, drama coach is overseeing the production. His stage crew will take charge of necessary scenery and stage arrangement.

"Scotty" Allen and his famous Alaskan dogs delighted Point Loma students recently with a thrilling account of his adventures. "Scotty" Allen depicted life, costumes and temperatures in Alaska. He described one trip on which the temperature was 80 degrees below zero, much too perilous for a human to be in, due to dangers of "lung burns".

"Scotty" Allen for years operated a sled and dog team trucking concern. He knows Alaska and dogs and as he states it, "Since I first had a dog it has never been dog but dogs for me." He has at least a dozen now.

Edward Marsh, of the Ocean Beach fire department, spoke to the students at an assembly at Point Loma.

He stressed the necessity for a quick, orderly response to the fire signal. Too often students say, "It's only a fire drill," but they never really know. Recent fire disasters in schools, hospitals and theatres have proved that a few careless, selfish people may be responsible for great loss of lives.

The correct method of turning in alarm, giving the exact address of fire is extremely important.

Keeping off the burning property and out of the way of the fire crew and truck are important. At a recent fire, the firemen were so hampered by crowds, they had to spray water to disperse them, in order to get the equipment in range of the fire.

Fire drills are given in city schools once a month and the building at Point Loma is always emptied in record time.

Interesting History Of California Counties

Believing that the thousands of tourists who annually motor over the state's great highway system would like to know how the counties they visit came by their names, Director of Public Works Earl Lee Kelly, at the request of Governor Frank F. Merriam, has had prepared from state records a series of brief stories of the origin and meaning of the names of the counties of California including a few salient facts about each county.

—Editor.

Sierra County—Created April 16, 1852. "Sierra" is the Spanish word for "saw", and was applied to the chain of mountains, Sierra Nevada, meaning "snow saw", because of the jagged, serrated or saw-tooth peaks which form the sky-line of this range of mountains, and the county that bears the name "Sierra" was so called because of the jagged peaks within its borders.

In by gone ages rivers flowed across Sierra county from north to south or from northeast to southwest, depositing beds of auriferous (gold-bearing) gravel. A titanic convulsion of the earth threw up masses of boiling mud and melted rock, changing the valleys into lofty mountains and forming new courses for the rivers. And then, in 1849, pioneers began mining and to date Sierra has yielded in excess of $250,000,000 in gold within a 20-mile radius of the county seat of Downieville.

Reno, Nevada, lies a few miles directly east of the county, Lake Tahoe 15 miles southeast, while the State Capitol, Sacramento, is 95 miles southwest, reached over a splendid highway. Sierra is one of the best known mountain counties, presenting rugged mountain views, snow-capped peaks, several beautiful lakes, areas of the Plumas and Tahoe National Forests, and one of the largest and most productive of all mountain valleys. Sierra valley measures 30 miles in length by 10 miles in width. The elevation is 5,000 feet with a delightful summer climate. It is a very productive garden spot with 18,000 acres under cultivation. Crops include wheat, oats, barley, alfalfa, potatoes, clover, hay, apples, peaches, pears, prunes, plums and walnuts.

Sierra trails, historic mining towns and hunting and fishing attract thousands of tourists. Motorists on Yuba Pass Highway arrive unexpectedly in the quaint county seat of Downieville. The location is on a large flat at the junction of the north and south forks of the Yuba river, practically enclosed on all sides by the forest-clad walls of Yuba canyon. Buildings erected in the fifties with overhanging balconies and a few modern structures line the crooked streets. Loyaltown in northeastern Sierra is an agricultural, dairying and lumbering community. Allegany is a picturesque old mining town. Population: 2,422. Area: 923 square miles.

Siskiyou County—Created March 22, 1852. The word Siskiyou never has been authentically determined. It generally has been assumed that this is the name of a tribe of Indians inhabiting this region, but there are several stories regarding its derivation and meaning. Senator Jacob R. Snyder of San Francisco, who advocated the formation of this county, in an argument delivered April 14, 1852, in the Senate of the State of California, stated that the French name "Six Callieux" was given to a ford on the Umpqua river at which place Michel la Frambeau, who led a party of Hudson bay company trappers, crossed in the year 1832. Six large stones or rocks lay in the river where they crossed, and they gave it the name of "Six Callieux". (Pronounced "See-ki-you") or Six-stone Ford, and from this the mountain or butte derived its name, which was subsequently given to the county when created.

Lying in Northern California between the county of Del Norte on the west and Modoc on the east with its northern boundary the California-Oregon state line, Siskiyou is the fifth largest county in the state and a magnificent land of mountains, forest, rivers, creeks and valleys.

ladies of the St. Andrews' guild. Those present were Mesdames Eckles, Penwarden, Bates, Akers, Reed, Griffith, Werre, Simonds, Parker, Coker, Mennemon, Riley, Elwood, Douglas and Schultze.

The county is making tremendous strides in lumbering and dairying, but industrial and agricultural progress never will overshadow the commanding position Siskiyou offers as a playground. McCloud, Klamath, Salmon, Scott, Shasta and Pit rivers are known to anglers the world over and the hunting grounds are equally famous.

Of the county's 4,003,840 acres, approximately one-fifth is comprised of valleys, the five largest of which are Shasta, Scott, Butte, Siskiyou and Strawberry. Much of the acreage is embraced in the Klamath National forest, the Shasta National forest and the Crater National forest. Because of its popularity as a vacation land, the state spent $1,000,000 on roads and highways in the county in 1930 and since has improved them greatly. With approximately 1,000,000 tillable acres, 630,000 now are under cultivation.

Jedediah Smith, hunter and trapper, led a party through Northern California in 1827 and is supposed to have been the first white man to enter Siskiyou. Two years later the Hudson bay Company sent a party there and were followed by the early settlers and miners of '49.

Dunsmuir, railroad division point, Montague, Mount Shasta, Fort Jones and Weed are thriving communities. Yreka, once the historic mining camp known as Thompson's Dry Diggings and later Shasta Butte City is the county seat. Population: 25,480. Area: 6,256 square miles.

Solano County—Created February 18, 1850. One of the original twenty-seven counties. "Solano" in Spanish means "east wind," and was the second name of the celebrated missionary Francisco Solano. When the chief of the powerful tribe of Suisunes Indians, which inhabited the west side of the River Jesus Maria, now the Sacramento river, was christianized, he was by this missionary baptized Solano, and as his residence was in the valley of Suisun, the name Solano was given to this county.

Noted for its early fruit, delightful climate, the Mare Island Navy Yard, deep-water ports and splendid highways, Solano possesses a history intimately associated with the building of California. General Vallejo first ruled over this region when it was under Mexican rule, serving as Military Governor under Castro, Gutierrez, Chico, Alvarado, Micheltoreno and Pico. During the four years after California became a State in 1850, this county engaged in several political battles in the selection of State Capitol. Both Vallejo and Benicia were for a time the seat of government, but in 1851 the legislature designated Vallejo as the capitol. In 1852 the legislature moved to Sacramento because a saloon and bowling alley occupied the two-story building that was the capitol. In March a flood swept through Sacramento so the capitol moved back to Vallejo. After vainly trying to get the legislators back, Sacramento joined forces with Benicia and that city was designated the capitol on May 18, 1853. The next year, Sacramento and Vallejo banded together and the capitol was removed to Sacramento where it has remained.

Solano is famous for its orchards and vineyards. Prunes and plums comprise over 40 per cent of the county's fruit crop. It is a leader in apricot and peach production. It ships the first cherries to the East each season. Vaca valley is one of the loveliest of California's agricultural regions. Solano's pioneers sent the first fruit from this State to the East in 1871. Its markets now extend to the Orient, South and Central American and Europe.

Deep-water shipping facilities and factory sites at Benicia, Cordelia famous for its cherries, Dixon with its thoroughbred cattle, sheep and swine, Rio Vista, Sacramento river port, Suisun and Fairfield, charming Vacaville and historic Vallejo make Solano an envied and unusual county. Population: 40,834. Area: 82 square miles. Next: Sonoma.

AN easy way to clean spark plugs is to spray them thoroughly with carbon tetrachloride. A few minutes after spraying, the carbon will be loosened and can easily be scraped off. Then blow the spark plugs out with compressed air. A hand fire extinguisher is useful for spraying the liquid, but any kind of spray gun can be used. Carbon tetrachloride is inexpensive and can be bought at most drug stores.

Leaks in the gasoline tank can be stopped with shellac. Remove the tank, dry it out, then pour in shellac. Swish the shellac over all the surfaces and into all the corners. Drain off the shellac and let the tank dry before re-filling.

POULTRY HELPS.

By E. E. Steele.

The term "indigestion" includes numerous conditions which may be attributed to digestive disturbance, such as loss of appetite, pica (abnormal or depraved appetite), sour or hanging crop, impaction of the gizzard, diarrhea, or constipation.

The principal causes are irregularities of feeding, such as feed that is too coarse, dry or fibrous, mouldy or decayed feed, access to poisonous plants or irritating chemicals, lack of grit or polluted water supply.

Indigestion may also be caused by some disease, as catarrh of the crop or stomach, enteritis, coccidiosis, or worms (see articles on these diseases for special treatment).

In treatment of simple indigestion, the ration should be clean, wholesome, nutritious and easily digested, with a constant supply of grit and oyster shell.

For impaction of the gizzard or for constipation, epsom salt, 1 lb. to each 10 quarts of drinking water, may be given to the flock one day, or castor oil, 1 pt. per 100 birds may be mixed thoroughly in the mash-feed for one day feed.

Sour or hanging crop may be treated by flushing out the crop, using a fountain syringe, with bicarbonate of soda solution, consisting of 2 teaspoonfuls of soda to a pint of warm water, hang the bird by the feet, head down, and by gentle pressure on the crop empty it. Repeat daily until recovered. Feed only a soft diet, sour milk or buttermilk for several days after recovery.

Following attacks of indigestion it is beneficial to stimulate the appetite and promote the secretion of digestive fluids by the use of a mild tonic.

To each 10 quarts of dry mash add and mix well 3 tablespoonfuls of the following mixture:
Powdered gentian, 1 lb.; powdered ginger, one-fourth lb.; bicarbonate of soda, one-fourth lb.; powdered iron sulphate, one-half lb.; cayenne pepper, 2 ounces.

This tonic can be given at any time for depraved appetite or when the birds are "off their feed."

IT'S GARDEN TIME.

Those forward-looking persons of patience who realize that the beauty of flowers and shrubs and lawns cannot just spring up at a wish, but must be visualized months before it is realized, are already planning their gardens this year.

Already they are selecting seed and preparing ground, and they are fortunate in being able to see in this bare ground and unexciting seed a profusion of natural loveliness that will be the envy of their more short-sighted contemporaries in summer time.

It is not alone because of the climate that California has been called the garden of America. Also there is the fact that individuals, communities, and whole cities are alive to California's tradition of helping Nature to be beautiful. Easterners who have scornfully accused us of going to extremes in everything admit also that we go to extremes in the matter of gardens. And this they envy us.

Recently the highest national prize in gardening came to California when Miss Thomaselle Graham of Sierra Madre was given first award of the Garden association of America for 1935. She had worked on her masterpiece for nearly 20 years.

Perhaps those who have not thus far had quite the courage or the patience may take heart from this accomplishment, and start planning a garden now. Whosoever does will not regret it, for to him will come pride, beauty, and a world of pleasure in the doing.

The Golden Text is from Isaiah: "Unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given; and the government shall be upon his shoulder."

Among the Bible selections in the Lesson-Sermon are the verses from Isaiah: "Behold my servant, whom I uphold; mine elect, in whom my soul delighteth; I have put my spirit upon him: he shall bring forth judgment unto truth. He shall not fail nor be discouraged, till he have set judgment in the earth: and the isles shall wait for his law." ## Warren-Walker School

The children at Warren-Walker school are anxiously watching their gardeners for signs of new plants. Last week Peter Pinney and Gwendolyn Harvey planted nasturtium, snapdragons and sweet peas. The seeds were to be planted one inch deep, so every small hole was measured with a ruler.

In the social science class, the intermediate group is doing a unit of work on nature study. Miss Price has a new book entitled "Birds or Flight". It is beautifully illustrated with actual photographs of wild life and there are many unusual pictures of birds in action.

One of our girls, Ruth Dogget, has been absent several days because of illness. Last week every one wrote her a letter.

A group of the Warren-Walker children are planning to go to the puppet show, "The Wizard of Oz". Of all the excursions taken, this one is most anxiously awaited.

The primary department has been working on an interesting unit called, "Our Helpers". They have studied about the postman, the milkman, the fireman and many others. One of the most interesting parts of this unit is the songs. They have learned a song about every "helper".

Want is a bitter and a hateful good, because its virtues are not understood; yet, many things, impossible to thought, have been by need to full perfection brought; the daring of the soul proceeds from thence, sharpness of wit and active diligence; prudence at once, and fortitude it gives; and if in patience taken, mends our lives.—Dryden.

SYNOPSIS

John Spencer and his cousin, Geoffrey Bohun, are vacationing in Austria. Geoffrey is a gifted portrait painter but prefers to paint landscapes. While strolling in the forest, John hears English voices, and decides to investigate. From cover he finds four men burying a man in green livery who, evidently, had been murdered. Pharaoh is the leader of the gang; the others are Dewdrop, Rush and Bugle. Unfortunately, John makes himself known to the assassins by dropping a letter with his name and address. He tells Geoffrey and his chauffeur, Barley, of his adventure. Geoffrey, realizing that John's life is in danger, declares he must vanish. Spencer discovers that the livery of the murdered man corresponds to the livery of the servants of Yorick castle, and tells Countess Helena, mistress of the castle, what he had seen. With Geoffrey and Barley, John starts for Annabel, a nearby village. They encounter Pharaoh. In making their getaway they exchange shots with the gang, without serious result. They arrive at Plumage farm, on the Yorick estate, where Lady Helena had requested John and his cousin to meet her. She reveals to them that her father had converted his immense fortune into gold and hidden it away in a secret vault in the castle. Knowing that his son, Valentine, Helena's brother, was incapable of controlling the fortune, he had revealed it to Helena alone just before his death. In some manner the news leaked out, and Pharaoh is after the treasure. They planned that Geoffrey and Barley would go to Salzburg to watch for Pharaoh, while John was to remain at Plumage, parading the roads about Yorick from dusk to dawn. Several nights go by without important incident. John visits Yorick castle and finds that Helena's brother, Count Valentine, is there and with him, on most friendly terms, is Pharaoh, as Captain Fanning. Hearing that John is stopping at Plumage, Pharaoh speaks to Dewdrop, John's suspect in a plot. As stoner is announced, Helena and John make their escape, pursued by Pharaoh's men, encountering many difficulties during the night. They run out of gas. Finally they arrive at a forester's cottage, where they find refuge. Freda, their hostess, gets petrol for their car and then goes to Salzburg to get word to Geoffrey. John finds their car gone.

CHAPTER V—Continued

My beautiful dream was over, and now, through misunderstanding, our lovely, precious relation was going to come to an end. If I did not speak out, it was finished.

"As Geoffrey's here, you may as well know the truth. I think of you as 'Nell' deep down in my inmost heart. It's the pretty name I'd call you if we were engaged. You see, I'm mad about you. I love you—I've always loved you, from the moment I met your eyes. I love you walking and riding and sitting here on the grass. I love your head and your shoulders and that tiny vein in your ankle that looks like a thread of blue silk. I love everything about you and all you do. I love your voice and your laughter and the glorious light in your eyes. And I love your shining nature, as I love the smell of your hair and the breath of your lips. . . . And to be with you here like this—well, now perhaps you can see what it's meant to me and why I clung to my secret and why I was handicapped in trying to play your game." I got to my feet. "Good-by, Nell," I said gently.

I turned to the path and the smiling cottage below.

For a moment I stood, blinking. Then—

"Have they gone in?" I asked.

"I—I made a mistake," said Helena. "It wasn't them."

I was sitting on the settle in the kitchen, with my head deep in my hands.

How I got there I do not know, for my case was like that of a man who plunges into some water to drown his cares, only to find that the bed of the river is dry. I doubt if such a man could tell how he got to the bank.

And I do not know how long I sat there, but all of a sudden I knew that I was not alone.

I could smell the faint perfume that Helena used.

As I started up, I found she was sitting beside me, looking very grave and gentle, with her precious hands in her lap.

"I tricked you," she said. "I'm sorry. But it was the only way. You are very reticent, John. And very, very humble—and rather blind. Old Florin knew in an instant, and I am sure Pharaoh, too."

"Knew that I loved you?" I cried.

Helena rose to her feet.

"This comes," she said, "of putting me up on a dais. I never was up on a dais, where you were concerned. If you stand up, you'll find that I have to look up—to see myself in your eyes."

I stood up, trembling.

"Nell," I said hoarsely. "Nell."

I set my hands on her shoulders and looked her full in the eyes. "That day we lunched at Yorick. Florin looked at you, and you nodded and looked away. Was he . . . asking you . . . if you loved me?"

She met my gaze squarely.

"He was asking me if I was to be your wife."

"And you . . ."

"My brain was reeling."

"I told him what I hoped was the truth."

I was past all speaking.

As I drew her into my arms, her hands went up to my hair.

CHAPTER VI

Eavesdropping.

Twenty-four hours had gone by—and something was seriously wrong.

Of that there could be no doubt.

We had passed the day in a happiness such as, I think, is given to very few, but now the sun was sinking, yet Geoffrey had not appeared.

That the forester's wife might be late had never entered our heads. We were waiting for Freda at a quarter to eight. We might have spared our energy, for eight o'clock went by, yet she did not come.

And nine o'clock went by . . . and ten. . . .

Bad news is trying enough; but when the absence of news is so prolonged that only a fool would continue to hope against hope, it is, I think, a stout heart that will feel no alarm.

There was no longer any doubt in our minds. Somehow or other Pharaoh had put a spoke in our wheel.

At 11 o'clock that Thursday I led the way into the kitchen, took my seat at the table and opened the map.

"I must leave you, Nell," I said quietly. "There's no other way."

Helena nodded, and a hand went up to her head.

"What will you do, John?"

"I must get a lift at Witchcraft and hire a car where I can." I considered the map. "I should think I'd get one at Sabbot. From there I must drive to Salzburg for all I'm worth." I drew some paper towards me and started to make some notes.

An exclamation from Helena snapped the sentence in two.

I looked up sharply.

There was horror in her beautiful eyes—and these were fast on the paper on which I was making my notes.

"What is it, Nell?" I cried, rising.

She clapped her hands to her face.

"Oh, John," she whispered, "that paper . . ."

For an instant I stared at the sheet—one of a cheap, gray packet which, when we had asked her for note-paper, the forester's wife had produced.

"Listen, John. I think that paper has told me why Geoffrey isn't here. You wrote to him in pencil, the pencil was blunt and you pressed." She pointed a trembling finger. "There on that sheet's the impression of what you wrote."

This was true.

"D'you remember our last patrol—how, when we parted, I offered to wire to your cousin? And you said yes, and I did. But I wrote out the wire on a pad of writing-paper—and the pencil was blunt."

"You mean—"

"The pad was on the library table. If Pharaoh saw it and read it, it gave him your cousin's address. Supposing he wired the next morning, while we were talking to Freda, here in this room. . . . Supposing he wired, as I did, using your name. . . . Supposing he said, Return. . . ."

"One moment," I said. "I must think."

I thought very fast.

Hypothesis or no, here was a good explanation of my cousin's failure to come. If Pharaoh had wired to Geoffrey, Geoffrey would have left Salzburg before my letter arrived.

"I must go at once," I said, and picked up the map.

"To Plumage, John?"

I nodded.

"I must get a car somehow and drive there as fast as I can. I can hide the car near the high road and go through the woods to the farm. There's not an instant to lose—we're three days late. God knows where Freda is—I can only hope and pray that she's missed her train."

Together we studied the map.

I glanced at my watch.

"With average luck," said I, "I ought to be there not later than half-past three."

"And then," said Helena quietly.

"My sweet, I don't know. I've got to find out something and to act on what I find out. And now for you. You mustn't stay in the cottage; you must spend the day in the forest and keep out of sight. And I'll come back, my darling, as soon as ever I can."

Two minutes later I was treading the path to Witchcraft, and the bracken which veiled my lady was out of my sight.

At half-past six that evening I made the woods behind Plumage, and five minutes later I was lying just clear of the foliage, surveying the back of the farm. The stars had fought against me, and my journey had taken far longer than I had hoped, but now I saw very clearly that all I could do was to watch, for that I must go no closer until it was dark.

That Bugle and Rush were at Plumage I had no doubt; leave the woods, therefore, I dared not, while it was day, for the shutters of the house were open and the valley was full of light.

From where I now lay there was nothing at all to observe. I therefore re-entered the woods and cautiously moved round their fringe, stopping from time to time to peer at the farm, but all I saw were the farm-hands about their business and a groom that was not Axel, cleaning a bit.

I was now not far from the lane which led up to the farm, and for one who was content to observe I could not have been better placed. So I picked a spot in the bushes and settled down to observe.

It was forty minutes later that Bugle came out of the house.

I think that he had been sleeping, for he yawned and stretched and looked about him, as a man that has only just waked. Then he took his seat on a bench by the side of the door and a servant brought out a tankard and set it down by his side.

One thing, at least, was now clear—if I would have news of my cousin, I should have to do more than observe.

If I could find the good wife and hear what she had to tell. The danger, of course, was that I should encounter some servant. I could trust the farmer's wife, but if Pharaoh had given them orders, I could not trust the servants to disobey. Still, something would have to be done. I had not come there to watch Bugle enjoying his ale.

It was eight o'clock and the light was beginning to fail when I heard the sigh of the Rolls on the road of approach.

A moment later the car swept over the bridge, and Bugle laid down his pipe and got to his feet.

I saw that Dewdrop was driving and that Pharaoh sat by his side.

Pharaoh stayed but two minutes.

For that time he spoke to Bugle, who listened with evident interest to what he said. Then he nodded to Dewdrop, who instantly let him in his clutch. Bugle stood watching till Pharaoh was out of sight, then he turned on his heel and went into the house.

And that was all.

As I made my way back to the foot-bridge, I tried my best to believe that the visit which I had just witnessed was Pharaoh's evening call. He had been out scouring the country for news of my lady and me and was now returning to Yorick with empty hands.

It was no doubt his practice to visit Plumage like this, to see that Rush and Bugle were doing as they had been told. And yet . . .

Pharaoh's manner had been urgent. He had not wasted a moment and the Rolls had not carried much dust. He might have been setting out, and not coming in—setting out on some sudden quest.

I decided one thing out of hand. That was to learn, if I could, what Pharaoh had said.

If this was of any importance, Bugle was pretty sure to discuss it with Rush, and if I could hear them talking, as once before—

I heard the sound of a car. This seemed to come from the farm. I heard the engine started and as I stood still, listening, I heard her move off in low gear. Bugle or Rush was withdrawing their car from the coach-house and driving her on to the apron, ready for use.

At this I swore under my breath, for if Bugle and Rush were about to go off on some errand, my object must be defeated and most of my labor be lost. I might be able to speak with the farmer's wife, but that she would have news of my cousin was none too sure, and, indeed, since I had seen Pharaoh, I could see health in nothing at all but in sharing his underlings' counsels as soon as ever I could.

I hastened on desperately. . . .

From the verge of the meadows I regarded the back of the house. The light, I have said, was falling, but dusk would not come in for another half hour. Two minutes later I was flat against the trunk of a lime that was standing 12 feet from the window of what had been my bedroom four days before.

Now to enter the house was easy, for all the windows were open and none of the shutters were shut. Still to enter a lion's den may be easy enough. . . . I had no desire to climb into an occupied room. Then the sight of my sponge on a window-sill jogged my wits.

One of the lower windows belonged to the primitive bathroom which Geoffrey and I had used, and since this was sure to be empty at this time of day, here was as safe an entry as the faintest of hearts could desire.

I whipped from the lime to the window and swung myself over the sill.

I made bold to open my door, which gave to the hall.

As I did so another door was opened—the door of the sitting-room.

"An' shut the shutters," growled Rush. "Can you understand that? Furmy, you fool, furmy."

The man-servant answered something and closed the door. Then he set his tray on a table that stood in the hall and stepped to and opened the door immediately opposite mine.

His intention was plain: he was going to close the shutters of every room.

In a flash I was at my window and was pulling to its shutters and shutting the twilight out.

Something Brand
New in Necklines

PATTERN NO. 1784-B

An unusually clever and interesting yoke treatment, front and back, distinguishes this altogether lovely daytime frock. With the neck opening at the back, the V-shaped yoke extends over the shoulder and combines with a soft high neckline to give a new and flattering collar effect, equally fetching front and back. Full set-in sleeves drop gracefully to the wrist and the waist portion gathers to the yoke in the rear to provide essential fullness. A flaring panel, as fashion dictates, features an otherwise simple skirt which is dart-fitted at the back and a novelty belt adds a finishing touch. Fashioned of soft silk, printed or plain, in amber or green or the always fashionable black, this striking all-occasion frock will add zest to your winter wardrobe and see you through the coming spring. It will wear well under a wrap and appear doubly attractive when the wrap or coat is removed.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1784-B is available in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Corresponding bust measurements 30, 32, 34, 36 and 38. Size 16 (34) requires 4 yards of 39-inch material. Every Barbara Bell Pattern includes an illustrated instruction guide which is easy to understand.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1784-B can be procured for fifteen cents. The Barbara Bell Pattern Book featuring winter designs is ready. Send fifteen cents today for your copy.

Women More Vicious Than

Men, Says J. Edgar Hoover

Take it from no less an authority than J. Edgar Hoover, director of the federal bureau of investigation, the female of the species is more deadly than the male. That is, women are more to be feared than men. Especially does this hold true where criminals are concerned. Women criminals, he asserts, excel in the will to kill. Statistics kept by the bureau of investigation reveal that the percentage of women charged with crimes of violence is greater than "similar offenses charged to men. Although only 6.9 per cent of the persons arrested in the United States in October were women, these women showed a greater tendency toward murder than all the males arrested."—Pathfinder Magazine.

Economic Waste
Scored By Trade Group

Elimination of economic waste in distribution, together with improved marketing methods developed by modern chain stores, has resulted in curbing higher living costs throughout the country, the Federal Trade Commission announced in its 1935 report, it was disclosed today.

In a summary of distribution problems the Federal Trade Commission says in part:

"After careful study of the subject, the Commission concluded that the great expansion of the chain store system of distribution was more than anything else due to the lower selling prices of chain stores as compared with independent retailers.

"Chain store prices on comparable standard-brand items of grocery and drug merchandise were on the average substantially below those of independent retailers."

The Commission further says that the ability of chain stores to keep selling prices down to the consumer is due largely to their less expensive method of retailing, such as the elimination of credit and delivery service and from their ability to realize the benefits of large-scale advertising.

In reference to special laws curbing chain stores from passing on to consumers the benefit of such distribution advantages, the Commission said that "such a program would involve radical interference with the rights of private ownership and initiative, virtual abandonment of the competitive principle, and destruction of the public advantage represented by lower prices and lower cost of living."

Early last year the Commission completed a six-year study of distribution problems in connection with chain stores and said in part: "If, by eliminating certain services rendered by independents, the cost of doing business is lowered, the consuming public is the judge whether it is willing to forego those services or pay for them elsewhere in the form of higher prices."

"The economic advantage of chain stores in the way of lower selling prices is illustrated by the fact that in the smaller towns, at least, people of lower means patronize chain stores to a greater extent than do those with larger incomes."
